

Contents

Preface to the Second Edition	ix
Preface	xxiii
Acknowledgements	xxv
1 Never Such Innocence Again	1
PART ONE ETHICS WITHOUT THE MORAL LAW
2 Nietzsche's Challenge	11
3 Self-interest as a Restraint	18
4 The Moral Resources: Humanity	22
5 The Moral Resources: Moral Identity	26
6 The Festival of Cruelty	31
7 Answering Nietzsche	40
PART TWO THE MORAL PSYCHOLOGY OF WAGING WAR
8 Close Combat	47
9 The Case of My Lai	58
10 The Shift to Killing at a Distance	64
11 Bombing	69
12 Hiroshima	89
13 War and the Moral Resources	113
PART THREE TRIBALISM
14 Rwanda	119
15 The Tribal Trap	123
16 The Political Containment of Tribalism	133
17 The Roots of Tribal Conflict	141
18 The Capacity to Unchain Ourselves	149

WAR AS A TRAP

19	The Trap of the Trenches	155
20	The Home Front	165
21	The Stone Has Started to Roll: 1914	177
22	Sliding Out of the Trap: 1962	200
23	Ways Out	224

PART FIVE

BELIEF AND TERROR: STALIN AND HIS HEIRS

24	In Those Years	237
25	The Trap of Terror	241
26	Belief: Ends and Means	252
27	Stalinism and the Moral Resources	257
28	The Working of the Belief System	265
29	Stalinism, Truth and Moral Identity	274
30	Mao's Utopian Project	283
31	Overturning the Basket: Cambodia	299
32	Utopia and Belief	310

PART SIX

THE WILL TO CREATE MANKIND ANEW: THE NAZI EXPERIMENT

33	The Core of Nazism	317
34	Obedience and Conformity	328
35	The Attack on Humanity	337
36	The Erosion of Moral Identity	349
37	The Nazi Moral Identity	355
38	The Willingness to Believe	360
39	Philosophers	365
40	Bystanders	379
41	Interpreting the Nazi Episode	394

PART SEVEN

ON THE RECENT MORAL HISTORY OF HUMANITY

42	Some People and Not Others	401
43	Ethics Humanized	405
	Epilogue: The Past Alive in the Present	411
	References	415
	Sources and Acknowledgements	448
	Index	451