Contents

List of Figures ix
Acknowledgements xi
Introduction 1

I A Society of Victims? The Post-war Years, 1945 to 1957

I.1 Lives in Ruins? Nuremberg from Rubble to Reconstruction 25
I.2 ‘Victims of Bolshevism’? The Refugees and Expellees between Assimilation and Self-assertion 37
I.3 ‘The First Expellees of the War’? The Evacuees as ‘External Citizens’ 51
I.4 The Veteran as Victim: The Heimkehrer between War and Peace 63
I.5 Loss, Absence and Remembrance: The Relatives of the Missing 75
I.6 Rehabilitation and Reintegration: The ‘Victims of Denazification’ 88
I.7 Re-marginalising the Marginalised: The ‘Victims of Fascism’ 104
I.8 Politics, Ideology, Sympathy, Empathy: Voicing Suffering in the Post-war Era 119

II The Making of a Memory Culture: Manufacturing Civic Consensus, 1945 to 1961

II.1 Mobilising Memory Communities: Associational Life and the Contestation of the Past 135
II.2 Marking Suffering, Masking Schism: The Inscription of Memory on the Urban Landscape, 1945 to 1961 160
viii CONTENTS

II.3 Rehearsing Sorrow, Re-forging Society: Rituals of Remembrance between Mourning and Politics 187
II.4 Local Stories, National Stories: Exhibiting Memory at the Germanic National Museum 208

III Challenging the Consensus, Containing the Challenge: New Impulses, 1958 to 1968

III.1 Impulses from Without, Impulses from Within: Liberalisation and the ‘Confrontation of the Past’ 227
III.2 Indicting the Perpetrators, Exonerating the People: Trials and their Reportage in the Local Media 246
III.3 Displaying Barbarism, Displacing Blame: Exhibitions on the Holocaust in the 1960s 266
III.4 Critiquing History, Creating Democracy? The Nuremberg Conversations, 1965 to 1968 281

IV Nationalist Residues in a Decade of Flux: Old Responses, 1958 to 1968

IV.1 The ‘Victims of War’ (i): The Soldiers’ Last Retreat 299
IV.2 The ‘Victims of War’ (ii): The Expellees’ Offensive 319
IV.3 Fading Personal Experience, Forging Public Meaning: Commemorations and Civic Identity Politics in the 1960s 336
IV.4 The Fascist as ‘Outsider’: Nuremberg, the Nazi Party Rallies and the NPD 355

Conclusion 375
Primary Sources 379
Index 000